What The Blogsmith Needs From You to Get Started

Before we'll be able to work together, we need you to fill out the following documents:

Our blog
client intake form:

<http://blgsmth.tips/intake>

If applicable -
Writing style guide
preferences:

<http://blgsmth.tips/style-form>

These forms ask several questions, none required. But the more you put into sharing complete information about your company, the less edits you'll have to deal with over the long-term.

We will send you a copy of your submission so that you can also make use of these documents with other vendors.

SEO Content Writing Process & Timeline

Here's what you can expect in terms of The Blogsmith's content writing process:

Some clients come to us with content topics, others prefer pitches.

We can work either way!

We encourage sharing your thoughts on direction, especially at the beginning of this relationship.

Help us with details for the brief, like audience and goals — we will complete the rest:

<http://blgsmth.tips/content-brief>

We can supply custom graphics. We ask for brand visual details on the intake form.

We'd also appreciate insights for the "Audience" section of our content brief if different from standard customer(s) described in the intake form.

Generally, we offer seven business days turnaround based on the prior approval of agreed-upon deliverables (such as outlines) for new blog content up to 1500 words.

Once approved, we can upload articles to your content management system (CMS) for an additional fee.

Faster turnaround is available with a 25% rush fee. To coordinate included content interview or expert roundup add-ons, we request three additional business days.

Invoice and Retainer Payment Information

We will send an invoice for either 50% (new/one-time/infrequent client) or 100% (retainer client) of the project cost, due on receipt to start and schedule the project.

We define retainer relationships as writing 5,000+ words per month.

We invoice via QuickBooks, with the option to set up ACH payments for retainer clients.

Retainer clients pay in advance for the month's work and receive a $0.15/word discount. If additional content is needed on top of the retainer inclusions, they will be billed at the end of the month add this discounted rate.
